Town of Appomattox Publishes Annual Financial Statement

The annual financial statement of the Town of Appomattox is published in today's issue, and lists the receipts and expenditures for each of the town's funds.

The town operates on a calendar year, and thus the figures are for the twelve months ending Dec. 31, 1958.

The town water fund and sewer fund showed excess of revenues over expenditures, since income in these funds is reserved for payment of bonds, inteest and maintenance and outlay in reserved fields.

During the year, the town paid a $1,000 sewer fund bond, and a $3,000 water fund bond.

Attention is directed to the full financial statement, found on Page Eight.

The statement was prepared by C. J. Hunter, Town Treasurer.

U. D. C. Chapter Sees Display On Confederate Medical Gear

"The Heroic Work of the Confederate Doctor" was the subject of the program when the Appomattox Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy met Thursday evening, Feb. 19.

An exhibit on display showed articles typical and those actually used by doctors who entered the service of the War Between the States from Appomattox County. Among those of especial interest was a saddle-bag, containing many of the original battles and instruments, which belonged to Dr. William E. Carter. He practiced medicine in Appomattox County and then moved to Nelson County, from which place he entered service and was with General Lee at Appomattox. Dr. Carter married Margaret Moss, of Appomattox. They were the grandparents of Harold Carter, from whom the saddle-bags were received. He is in the Seventh Grade here, with Mrs. Julian Henson as his teacher.

On loan from Judge Joel W. Flood were medical instruments which were used by his great-grandfather, Dr. Joel Walker Flood. The instruments were in two beautiful mahogony cases, which held tools suitable for any operation—on head, on body ,or limbs. The instruments were of such fine material and temper that one is led to believe they were made in England. Judge Flood owns the home which was built by Dr. Flood and it is located about two miles north of Old Appomattox Court House. Also on display was a Confederate musket which was lent by Judge Flood.

In the display was an article written about Dr. Richard C. Bowles, which appeared in the Richmond Times-Dispatch, November 14th, 1943. Dr. Bowles was Assitant Surgeon in the Confederate Navy, and was in the battle fought around Charleston, S. C., on August 5, 1863; at the Battle of Mobile Bay, of which battle he himself has written a graphic description, being taken prisoner and held in prison at Pensacola, Florida ,for six weeks. He was then exchanged and sent back to Richmond and returned to the Navy, in which service he remained until the close of the war. Dr. Bowles was the father of Mrs. W. M. Black, who resides in Pamplin, Va., this county.

Medical books which belonged to two Appomattox doctors who fought for the Confederacy were shown. They were Dr. William H. Abbitt and his cousin, Dr. Chas. Webb.

Mrs. J. A. Burke, using as source material —"The Photographic History of the Civil War," edited by Francis Tweevelyan Miller, quoted from a chapter written by Deering J. Roberts, M. D., Surgeon, Confederate States Army, in which he told of the resourcefulness of the Medical Department. It was shown how, after the drugs and medicine handled by the usual dealers, were diminished, the supplies came in from across the Atlantic, notwithstanding the rigid blocade of all Southern ports. These means were supplemented by a careful economy and "a resort to indigenous resources to be found in our hills and dales, fields and forests, mountains and valleys." As a substitute for quinine to relieve malerial fever, a compound tincture of willow, dogwood, and yellow poplar barks was used. Many other common herbs used were: poppy seeds to relieve pain, seeds and leaves of Jamestown plant (jimson-weed), may pop root, slippery-elm bark and many other plants and herbs common to the South were used by the resourceful doctors to relieve and cure the soldiers. It was noted that several surgeons, among them, Dr. Hunter McGuire, collected fifteen thousand cases of chloroform anesthesia without a single death.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. J .A .Burke, with Mrs. Joel W. Flood and Mrs. Burke as joint hostesses.

GARDEN CLUB HEARS MRS. S. S. SHOUSE

Members of the Appomattox Garden Club and guests were entertained at "Hillandale," the home of Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Shouse on Monday evening, Feb. 23. Guests were given a hearty "welcome" in Spanish by the hostess' children, dressed in colorful Peruvian costumes. Mrs. Shouse and her family have just returned from a year's stay in Lima, Peru. She spoke on the characteristics of this country and its people, gardening and flowers, and displayed many beautiful pieces of woodwork, tooled leather, pottery, silver, and other items made in Peru.

A social hour followed the program. Beautiful hand - decorated Peruvian pottery trays and teapots were used on the dining table from which guests were served tea, Peruvian sandwiches and other delicacies.

During a brief business meeting, it was announced that Mrs. Harold Hemingway, Ashland, Va., will conduct a Flower Arrangements Workshop on March 23rd, at the Elementary School. Mrs. Hemingway is a Nationally Accredited Flower Show Judge and this program should prove both helpful and enjoyable.

Fire Alarms Out of Town

The overwhelming percentage of fire alarms answered by Appomattox Volunteer Firemen, are from out-of-town. It was revealed this week that the firemen have answered fifteen alarms thus far this year, and all but two were out-of-town. The two alarms from within the town were small grass fires. One of these came this past Saturday.

The firemen have two fire engines available. One is owned by the town and the other by the county. The county engine is equipped with a water supply. The county engine has been the one used most so far this year.

W. E. Hancock, fire chief, keeps a record of alarms answered, and of the service rendered.

Consecration Service For New Trinity Church

With a spring-like day, the new sanctuary at Trinity Methodist Church was opened last Sunday, with a Consecration Service at 11 o'clock A. M. Highlighting the service was an address by Dr .John F. Owens, Lynchburg District Superintendent, the presentation of the keys to the new church to J .Ralph Coleman, chairman of the Trustees, by Mr. Bill Jamerson, and the act of Dedication, itself, led by the District Superintendent. The church was entirely filled for this service. Rev. I. F. Callahan, Lynchburg, a former pastor ,also had part in the service.

From 3:00 to 5:00 o'clock, the church observed Open House, at which time the pastor estimates between 700 and 800 people filed through the new building. They were greeted by a receiving line, composed of the pastor, Mrs. David I. Martin, Charge lay Leader; J. J. Morris, Official Board Chairman; Ralph Coleman, Trustees' Chairman; Charles Martin, of the Official Board; and K .E. Coleman, Building Fund Treasurer. Refreshments were served to all guests by ladies of the church. Everyone seemed impressed by the beauty and commodiousness of the building.

The structure was erected by J. E .Jamerson & Sons, Appomattox, at an approximate cost of $42,000, taking about eight months to complete.

The pastor reports this project was possible only by the unquestioned loyalty of the congregation to the church and the fine efficiency of the building committee, who were T. R. Martin, Jr., chairman; Dick Martin, Fleming Drinkard, Robert Morris, Mrs. K. E. Coleman, Mrs .Tom Kern, Mrs. David Martin.

PILOT FOREST PROJECT STARTED

A major step in the development of a Pilot Forest in Buckingham County has been taken with the selection of the site—21 acres of woodland belonging to Mrs. Mamie S. Ripley, of Buckingham, Va. This property is located at the junction of Routes 691 and 24, approximately one mile southwest of Mt. Rush.

Mr. R. G. Turner, of Amelia, Va., and Mr. R. B. Parris, Jr., of Appomattox, Va., area foresters, respectively, of the Chesapeake Corporation of Virginia and Continental Can Co., Inc., and joint area chairmen for the Pilot Forest project, said the property was chosen as representative of woodlands in this area, and that work will begin immediately on the project.

In selecting the site, Turner and Parris with the assistance of 'Dick' Ellis, County Agent of Buckingham County, visited numerous private woodlands with the purpose of finding a suitable location which was readily accessible and offered as many varieties of forest management that could be practiced as possible. Mrs. Ripley's property was selected after this examination.

The Pilot Forest project, which is being sponsored throughout the South by the Southern Pulpwood Conservation Association, is designed to provide permanent guides to good forestry practices, Turner and Parris explained.

Chesapeake Corporation and Continental Can Co. will do a complete initial forestry program on the Ripley property, including scientific harvesting, controlling undesirable species ,establishing fire control measures, and planting seedlings, — all without cost to the owner.

"Educational in nature, the Pilot Forest will be a guide to putting acres to peak production, thus pointing the way to more profitable use of small woodlands," they said. "Putting all woodlands into top production would have the same effect on the county's economy as a substantial new industry."

Through its member pulp and paper mills, the SPCA expects to dedicate more than 90 Pilot Forests throughout the South when the industry celebrates its second annual Pulp and Paper Day on April 14, they said.
